WHO'S THE BOSS?

14.11.2007

A news focus in Science Magazine asks "Who's the queen? Ask the genes" and shows new research that in some social insects nature, not nurture, determines whether offspring becomes worker or royalty.

I am not aware of any genetic studies of bosses but there might be also inherited personality traits in humans that favor a certain behavior.

Given my interest in a German gene-test law and the corresponding passivity of the German government, I am now proposing a "Biobank German Bundestag" that will allow me to go for gene variants that make our representatives different from us, the commonalty. I am sure that we will have a gene test law within 12 months ...
