

PHILOSOPHY

SORRY FOR THE POOR ENGLISH

2.11.2020

From a recent Nature email newsletter: There's more to science than English

The evidence shows that the pressure to write in English is a source of frustration and anxiety for some non-native English speakers, and hinders diversity in science. "English-speakers have become the gatekeepers of science, excluding a wide variety of opinions [and] perspectives," says conservation scientist Tatsuya Amano.

<https://journals.plos.org/plosone/article?id=10.1371/journal.pone.0238372>

CC-BY-NC Science Surf accessed 19.02.2026 