A MUST READ by Tim Berners Lee at Medium

Three and a half decades ago, when I invented the web, its trajectory was impossible to imagine ... It was to be a tool to empower humanity. The first decade of the web fulfilled that promise — the web was decentralised with a long-tail of content and options, it created small, more localised communities, provided individual empowerment and fostered huge value. Yet in the past decade, instead of embodying these values, the web has instead played a part in eroding them...
